

COMMENCEMENT

Members of Bedford High School Graduating Class Render

EXCELLENT PROGRAMME

Before Crowded House—Baccalaureate Sermon—Presentation of Diplomas—Orations in Full.

The annual commencement exercises of the Bedford High School began Sunday evening, April 28, when the baccalaureate sermon was preached in Assembly Hall by Rev. A. Thomas G. Apple, pastor of St. John's Reformed church, from the text "Thou therefore endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ."

Assembly Hall was crowded Friday evening when the board of directors, teachers and class marched to the rostrum to participate in the final exercises of the school year. The program was excellent in every particular, each graduate doing the assigned work in a manner most creditable, thus reflecting credit upon themselves, their teachers and the Bedford schools.

The processional was rendered by Miss L. D. Shuck, after which prayer was offered by Rev. M. L. Culler. The greeting song by the class and the class song which closed the exercises were appreciated by the large audience.

The class history by Miss Nellie Manock was original and well prepared and called forth rounds of applause.

The piano solo—"The Rustle of Spring"—and the vocal solo—"Time and Tide"—by Miss Margaret Shuck were roundly applauded as was also the recitation—"When the Moon Rose"—by Miss Nellie M. Ritchey. These young ladies both show ability in the lines in which they appeared.

The diplomas were presented by Moses A. Points, Esq., president of the board of education, who gave to the class words of advice which, if followed, will keep them in right paths.

LANDIS TANGER, Prin.

The exercises showed most plainly the work being done by Principal Tanager and his assistants in the high school as well as in the other departments where the foundations are laid. The numbers on the program not previously referred to, all of which reflect credit and reveal ability, are given in full; they speak for themselves.

Salutatory—Building the Ship

Miss Nellie B. Leonard

Our Commencement Day has dawned—the Commencement of the Class of 1907 of the Bedford High School—and it is my duty, in behalf of the class, to extend to you all a most cordial and hearty welcome.

Today finds us not at the end of our path of learning, for the spacious aisles of the School of Life stand open to welcome our approach.

When this class began its career in the High School four years ago, we looked forward with fast-beating hearts to the time when we should realize our fondest ambitions; when we should receive our diplomas and march out in the long line of graduates. Now the day has finally come for the launching of our vessel, the vessel which we were four long years in constructing.

The task of construction was begun in the Freshman year. As we look back over the past the voices of the master-builders linger still upon our ears.

"Thus," said they, "will we build this ship. Lay square the blocks upon the slip and follow well this plan. Choose the timbers with greatest care. Of all that is unsound beware. For only what is sound and strong To this, our vessel, shall belong; Here together shall we combine A goodly frame and goodly fame, And Class 1907 be her name."

As the ship builder must first decide of what material the ship shall be constructed, so the question arose before us. What shall be our foundation? Shall it not be Character? Just as it remains with the builder, whether a rude piece of metal shall be wrought into a keel or cast into a bulwark, so the task is ours, if we choose to develop a form, instinctive with immortal life, refulgent with all glory of Character.

At the Gateway of the Shipyard each one found four years ago, a block of purest material (time), a chisel and mallet (ability and opportunity) and a compass (purpose).

He was born in Ireland and came to this country when a young man, locating at Pottsville, Schuylkill county. When the Civil War broke out he enlisted and served three years. At the close of the war he went back to Pottsville where he worked many years in the coal mines. His wife died a number of years ago but he is survived by one married daughter who lives in Philadelphia.

Mr. Conner came to this county to work on the South Penn railroad about 22 years ago. He has made his home among farmers in this community for a number of years. He received a pension. Funeral services were held in St. John's church and interment was made in the Catholic cemetery at New Baltimore.

The cause of her death was heart trouble, with dropsical complications, and her death occurred without any suffering, though her sufferings were great during her illness. Mrs. Ferry was very well known and had a host of friends throughout Bedford county and the southern end of Blair county.

Mrs. Ferry had been a member of the Reformed church all her life, and lived and died in a blessed faith in her Redeemer. She leaves to mourn her death, a loving husband and nine children, as follows: Mrs. Cora Crum of Gaysport, Mrs. Mary Smith of Piney Creek, near Martinsburg; Elmer Ferry of near Roaring Spring; Job Ferry of near Martinsburg; Mrs. Grace Neal of Lakemont, Clara, Gertrude, DeWarren and Charles Ferry at home. Dr. Hetrick was born in Morrison's Cove 62 years ago. When a youth he enlisted at Rainsburg in Company D, 101st regiment, Pennsylvania volunteers. He participated in many battles and was taken prisoner at Plymouth, N. C., and sent to and confined in Andersonville prison for seven months and twenty days, when he was returned to the Union army. Funeral services were held at his late residence Monday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock and were conducted by Rev. Chambers of the M. E. church. Interment was made in Pleasantville cemetery.

WASHINGTON LETTER

President's Policies Caused Values to Shrink

SEND IN YOUR DOLLAR

To Help Make Oklahoma a Democratic State—The Moyer-Heywood-Harriman Affair.

Washington, D. C., May 8.—The thing that lies nearest the Democratic heart just now, from a national standpoint, is the coming election, next August, in the new state of Oklahoma.

Unless the President turns down the new state constitution recently made by a convention largely Democratic in membership, and which he will not do, there will be an election down there in August for a whole state ticket, judicial ticket, legislative ticket, which legislature elects two United States Senators and five members of the lower house of the Congress. The Democrats are anxious to make a clean sweep of the entire board, but they have a fight on their hands and they must work to win the victory. It should be the desire of every Democrat in the country to see the new state come into the Union as a Democratic state and it should be his pleasure as well, to help toward that end. I will tell him how he can help.

Chairman Griggs, of the Democratic Congressional Committee here, has issued a call for one dollar subscriptions to send to the State Chairman of the new state of Oklahoma, to assist our brethren down there. Let every Democrat who reads this send in his dollar to "Charles A. Edwards, Secretary, Democratic Congressional Committee, Washington, D. C." He will receive a receipt for the same which he can transmit to his children as an heirloom to show how he helped to make Oklahoma Democratic, and he may be proud of it. A dollar is not much to you who reads this, but the aggregation of dollars will help the boys down there who are fighting the battle of their lives with the whole of the Republican administration against them. Send in your dollar.

All political conversations in the national capital, these days, are confined chiefly to the muddle in the Republican party agent the Taft boom and the President's attitude thereto, a third term for Teddy and the row he has kicked up over the Harriman matter and the accusation against the imprisoned miners out in Utah.

The correspondence between Roosevelt and Harriman was the sensation of a day or two here, but when it got uncomfortably warm for Teddy and people began to ask questions and point out that the President had deliberately cut out some parts of the letters he had written to Harriman or vice versa, and that Harriman had evidently told all the truth and that Roosevelt had not, the latter side-stepped quicker than a wink. He sent for a whole bunch of newspaper correspondents here and told them a huge cock-and-bull story about a five million dollar conspiracy to defeat him and his policies and had it sent broadcast over the country. Of course, that stopped all talk about the Harriman correspondence and everybody went to talking about the great alleged conspiracy to defeat the great "I AM," and it was intended to have just exactly that effect. As I have frequently remarked previously, Mr. Roosevelt is a good politician and knows how and when to get to the public with something he wants the public to talk about. He did exactly the same thing a year ago last winter. When he got into that tangle with Tillman, Bailey and Chandler concerning the railroad rate bill and came out of it with some of his tail feathers plucked, he immediately switched the talk to the beef barons and the meat packers of the country by showing up the report of his special commissioners, who said that the packing houses were filthy and needed reforming a whole lot, and hence the cry for the cleansing bill passed by the Congress. The packers may have needed the legislation given to them, all right, but the hue and cry about it stopped all talk about the Tillman-Bailey-Chandler controversy, and that's what Roosevelt wanted and got.

This conspiracy business has had the same effect on the Harriman controversy and yet no evidence of any conspiracy has been presented to the dear public. No names have been called and every man who has been suggested as belonging to it, either has denied it openly and without contradiction, or has proved an alibi. The truth probably is that no such conspiracy exists only in the imagination of the fecund brain of the President, who knows that the captains of finance of the country have no reason to love him, for his crazy policies have caused values in this country to shrink over one billion dollars since 1901. How can such a thing occur without the common people, whom he professes to love so much, losing money as well as the magnates, for thousands of them have their money invested in railroad securities? If such a conspiracy does exist, then the President has got himself between the devil and the money power and the deep sea of trades unionism. His latest break has made the working people madder than a wet hen. His open condemnation of Moyer and Heywood before they have had a chance to be tried before an impartial tribunal has set tongues awagging.

funity) placed at his disposal by an unseen messenger.

All ships have to possess certain qualities, so this ship, which is soon to be set afloat upon life's voyage, must have its necessary characteristics. A ship constructed for enduring privations must possess the quality of buoyancy, represented in the Ship of 1907 by the cheerfulness and earnestness of its members in encountering and overcoming all obstacles that beset their course.

In some vessels it is essential that the greatest degree of speed shall be attained, but in our vessel, which is to weather rough as well as smooth and smiling seas, speed may often be a secondary matter. Steadiness and firmness, determination to hold true to the course mapped out, whatever the temptation to lure us on into more favorable waters. Nor must we neglect the quality of handiness, the ability to grasp and respond quickly to all opportunities lying in our path, under whatever conditions they may present themselves.

But after all it is the quality and amount of cargo that is of primary importance in ship construction. Much of the cargo of the ship of 1907 remains to be taken on. A little has been accumulated. During the four years of preparation, but every cruise is expected to add its share to the growing bulk, every strange port must contribute some part toward the freight, some experience to be added to our store of knowledge for future use and future need.

Then let the decks of the Ship of 1907 be put in readiness, let every member of the crew be at his post, so that if the seas begin to swell and winds to howl, all the spare sail may be drawn in and every muscle set to weather the storm.

Then, after all threatening dangers have been passed, may our ship come safely into the bay of rest, flying the colors of honor, of truth and of fidelity.

Oration—The Commercial Advantage of the Panama Canal
Ambrose Leasure

When, more than four hundred years ago, Columbus set sail from the little port of Palos, Spain, the one object leading him to undertake this perilous voyage was to find a water-route to Eastern Asia, then looked upon as the treasure house of the world. The great problem which the United States has undertaken is to complete the quest of Columbus and make, since it is impossible to find, a route to the far east.

The idea is older than the country itself. Nation after nation has been stirred by the idea of an isthmian waterway. We are apt to say that they simply failed. But let us give the French their due. The amount of work they accomplished is marvelous. Twenty miles on the Atlantic coast and five on the Pacific, and this without any improved machinery. In fact, almost done by hand.

Today, America has put her hand to the wheel. She realizes the importance of the canal to her commerce, both foreign and domestic. In modern commerce the time and cost of transporting products into market are matters of great importance. The producer who can put his products into market in less time and at a less cost than his rival is sure of that market.

The Pacific States produce chiefly raw material, such as agricultural products, lumber and minerals. They ship millions of tons of wheat to Europe and there compete with Russia, Argentina and India, all of which countries can convey their grain in less than one-fourth the time required for a trip from San Francisco to Liverpool, thereby coming into market first after the harvest and saving largely in cost of travel, insurance and interest on the capital invested. The lumber from the great forests of Oregon and Washington finds, today, an altogether insufficient market in Japan, Northern China and the west coast of South America, simply because the cost of transportation is so high that it does not have a fair profit to the producer. Even England would be a large consumer of this lumber if it could be furnished at a reasonable price.

It is often rumored that such an immense ditch would not prove beneficial to the United States. An argument in favor of the affirmative ought not be necessary; it stands to reason that the saving of from three to ten thousand miles of travel would be a sufficient inducement to shipping to change it from its present channels to the Panama canal. We may, therefore, take for granted that wherever such a saving can be accomplished, the tonnage benefited by it would naturally become tributary to the canal.

The canal is undoubtedly a necessity of the age and were it to cost double of what it is estimated to cost the immense benefits certain to result would amply justify its execution. It will bind together the remote sections of that vast country, go far into solving many difficult problems and make the United States a still more united country.

It will be of far greater service to the new world than the Suez canal is to the old. It will bring Japan, Northern China and Australia nearer to the Atlantic cities of the United States than they are now to England. It will give an immense impulse to our country's manufacturing, especially cotton and iron, and will greatly stimulate the ship-building industry and the development of the naval power of the United States.

Now, looked at from every point of view, it is seen that the canal is desired by every interest and, in fact, is a necessity as a means of defense, under the changed conditions that have come upon us in the past few years. If we are to take a leading part in the development of the Pacific we can only do so by holding the key to the western waters, which is truly the canal across the isthmus. These views are not only held by a great majority of our own people but are agreed to by the leading engineers and commercial men of Europe, and I dare say that if the canal is completed it will bring far greater wealth and prosperity to the United States than the boldest imagination dares propose.

Oration—American Ideals
Edwin A. Davidson

America has the shortest but the fullest history of any of the great nations of the world. It is a history largely of material prosperity, and because material prosperity has been such a marked trait in the purpose of the American people, older nations have criticized us as lacking the higher ideals and sentiments that prevail in the older civilization of Europe. As Americans, we must judge whether our growth has been too one-sided and whether this tendency among our people to get rich and own property is leading us away from the higher aims and purposes in life.

Before criticizing or condemning our industrial prosperity, we must remember what our country has accomplished in this century and a quarter of its life has been entirely in accordance with the spirit of the age. All nations of the earth are awakened to the same movement. This is an age of business, of physical and material development, of industrial energy and organization of mechanical achievement and scientific discovery.

Labor and genius applied to soil, sea and sky have, in every age, produced wealth. Its acquisition thus has been the common experience. The protection of property has been the aspiration of every abiding nation. The spirit of commerce, business, trade, the organization of industry and employment of labor, prompted by the hope of gain and the desire to accumulate wealth, have tended to promote the higher life of man.

In the next place it is but natural that our advance has been along the line of gain and wealth. Our forefathers had to lay the foundations for the great nation we are and the still greater nation we are to become, by hewing down forests, building roads and creating means of communication that would make for unity in the nation. This labor has given, in return, wealth to the individual and to our society. In general, we may be considered a money-making people. But has it been a curse? Has all this work that has been done been for ignoble purposes? This wealth, which has gone into the hands of the laborer, has enabled him not only to meet the necessities of life for himself and his family but he has been able to bring comforts into the home that have never been known in any country or in any age. Nor have the benefits of this accumulated wealth ended with the supplying of the creature comforts of the race.

In the early days of our history, while our forefathers were struggling against the elements and against hostile Indians, they established seats of learning and encouraged, as best they could, the education of the youth. Time was taken, in almost all the colonies, to educate the young and whatever money could be obtained was devoted to pay the instructors. At an early date academies and colleges were established, which had a struggling time to survive on account of the scarcity of money.

In the trying times when it took almost every effort of the people to support such institutions, they felt the need of their influence and many were the sacrifices in those early days to educate a son that he might be of greater service to the church or the state. The spirit which led our forefathers to undertake this work has since been kept alive and has succeeded in establishing in our country numerous schools and colleges. To the higher institutions of learning men of means have given lavishly and the government has encouraged their growth by assisting with large appropriations. Our government has made ample provision to encourage the arts and sciences by allowing to inventors, discoverers and to writers of books the benefits to be gained through the protection offered by patents and copyrights.

The very foundation of our government depends upon the intelligence of the individual. This intelligence must be based upon broad liberal principles, on principles under which the rights of others must be placed above personal gain and greed. It is true we are not perfect. Under our free system men have taken advantage of the ignorant in order to advance their own personal gain, but this is not the spirit of the American people.

Our people desire that right shall be done and justice be meted to all. In no land on the map is it more evident than in America that each individual is responsible to his fellows. Public opinion has a great deal to do in shaping the policies of those who hold office. By the very nature of our government our people must know what is best to do. Each man must, consequently, be a leader. He is called upon to express his opinions at the polls and town-meetings in matters concerning the management of local and national affairs.

All these tendencies have aided to give our people a material prosperity such as is not known in any country on the globe. And I ask again, has this progress in any way made our people a disgrace to the world? Are they robbers? Do they envy the well-being of any other fortunate people? No, our people, with their progress, are the most liberal and the most intelligent of their good will is permeating and influencing all mankind. All their learning and study is of such a character that it can be turned into account, and on this account there has risen from America a strong and sturdy manhood.

To say that we, as a people, feel that we have reached the dead line, as far as moral and spiritual natures are concerned, would be to belittle our institutions and our ancestry. We are anxious that we shall prosper for we know that prosperity is the road by which we can encourage a more patriotic spirit, create a greater respect for science, art and religion, and finally reach a higher state of perfection, morally and spiritually.

America still has problems to solve and every day we are meeting new problems that concern the well-being of the race. In the future graver and more intricate problems must be met and solved and none but Americans will be able to handle them satisfactorily. It was but plain destiny that we should come to this, and if we have kept our ideals clear, unmarred, commanding, through the great century and the moving scenes that made us a nation, we may keep them also through the century that shall follow. Let us put our leading characters at the front; let us pray that vision may come with power, let us ponder our duties like men of conscience and temper our ambitions like men who seek to serve, not to subdue, the world; let us lift our thoughts to the level of the great tasks that await us and bring in a great age with the coming of our day of strength.

Valedictory—The Responsible Individual
Calton Heckerman

In the history of the world, from its beginning to the present time, we see back of every recorded movement, "The Responsible Individual." This person may be the leader of an army, the leader of a civic or religious reform, or he may be a man of learning and reason who is the thinking machine back of a revolution in government or form of belief.

The knowledge which characterizes the present age had its origin at different places but back of these seats of learning to be seen the individual who developed ideas along a certain line. From Egypt, the builder of pyramids, we get our ideas of stretch and magnitude, through Euclid the great geometer; from Rome, who ruled the world from her seven hills, Justinian gives us the foundation of our laws in his Corpus Juris Civilis, which is the most precious legacy of Rome to the modern world, and from Greece, the land of beauty, comes science of mind and spirit, given us by Plato, the philosopher.

However, the responsibility of the individual does not confine itself to making a country famous for learning but spreads to its church, its military and its political affairs. We see this in every nation. In France, for instance, a start is made under Clovis, Christian king, during the period of greatest development, and under Robespierre, during The Reign of Terror, the stepping stones were laid which led to the empire under Napoleon, who was, in his time, the greatest individual responsible for war and a general condition of unrest.

In the religious reforms there first appears Constantine, who assumed a great responsibility when he made Christianity the state religion of Rome. During the Reformation, Luther, Zwingli and Calvin, along with Wesley of a later period, stand as individuals responsible for the forming of new divisions in the church.

After the Teuton came in contact with other civilizations and adopted the good in them, the influence of the

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Individual became more marked and men were challenged to do their own thinking. It was then that they began to stand up for their rights and seek new homes where they might develop institutions that would give greater opportunities for freedom than they had hitherto known.

This spirit took hold of Europe early in the 17th century and it was its influence that led the Puritan, the Catholic and the Quaker to America. Soon others followed to establish new homes in the wilderness and in their confidence, that they could govern themselves, made new forms for carrying this out and proceeded to live according to the dictates of conscience. When the tyrant bonds of the mother country became severe they took upon themselves the responsibility of self government.

Under this government has sprung up a nation whose expansion has surprised the world; whose growth in wealth has been enormous and whose success, under the representative form of governing, has given an example to the rest of the civilized world. Under it every man is responsible for his own development and since each individual has the choice of the line of work he shall pursue he determines his own fortune and his success or failure rises above mere circumstance.

It is this principle that has built roads across our mountains, broken our prairies, increased the wealth of individuals and brought comfort to the homes of our common people that are known in no other nation. This is due to the fact that they are, as a rule, thrifty and honest. The development of private enterprise has formed an individuality in them that is marked and effective because each man is responsible for what he is.

What a grand thing it is to live in an age when each man is, in fact, the maker of his fortune and is morally, mentally and physically what he makes himself; in an age when individual worth in one even in the most humble circumstances is recognized and honored. And yet, while our institutions encourage responsibility, we see on every side of us men of ability and strength, who are irresponsible and who base all their failures on circumstance. They are neglectful of opportunities that are at their doors and let pass every chance for good action. To these belong those delinquents and dependents that pollute the fair name and character of our society and those who, through neglect and indolence, spend their substance and waste their energies.

To this class belong those reprobate politicians who hold office and do not realize the importance of duty; that class of men who sell their votes or neglect their duty as citizens, and those who are morally dead and know no duty except for personal gain. The examples of carelessness that have been exposed during the last few years is a warning that each man should assume his duties, however small, in good faith and be ever faithful to the trusts that he has in charge.

Since we are living in an age when the responsible individual counts for so much, let us see to it that each one of us is willing to do his part and do it well in whatever field we may labor. We must assume responsibility in order to maintain the high standard of manhood the world requires and since all the training we have had thus far has been to enable us to bear the part we are to assume in life, let us realize that each age brings new duties and new responsibilities. In order that we may profit by this training, let us assume our duties willingly and endeavor to be masters of situations even in adverse circumstances.

In behalf of the class I wish to express, to the citizens of Bedford, to the Board of Education and to the teachers, our appreciation of the opportunities you have offered us and of the interest you have taken in our welfare as students.

Schoolmates: We appreciate the kindness you have shown us and we regret to withdraw from the society you have made so pleasant for us.

Classmates: There is no better way in which we can show our appreciation of the instruction we have had and of the benefit we have been to each other than to assume the duties which the world demands of us with a will. I regret to think that this is the last time we shall meet as a class but the memory of pleasant associations will always be dear to us and we can go about our duties with hearts cheered by glow of school-day memories.

Does Your Heart Beat

Yes. 100,000 times each day. Does it send out good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health; bad blood, bad health. And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

One frequent cause of bad blood is sluggish liver. This produces constipation. Poisonous substances are then absorbed into the blood, instead of being removed from the body daily as nature intended. Keep the bowels open with Ayer's Pills, liver pills. All vegetable.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

BEDFORD IN YE OLDEN TIME

Complete Text of Two Lectures Delivered by

DR. CHARLES N. HICKOK

In the Court House at Bedford, February 23 and March 19, 1886, and Printed in Full

The Funk and Nawgel taverns are still standing on West Pitt street, and were of provincial fame in their day for their excellent "entertainment for man and beast." That of George Funk was the aristocratic inn, and the headquarters for the judges, lawyers and army officers of those days. The tavern of Margaret Frazer stood back in the lot occupied now by the residence of Miss Lyons and not far from the iron bridge. It was there that William Frazer, the first native white child in Bedford county, was born. This William Frazer was the grandfather of our townsman James Frazer. Mrs. Frazer was captured by the Indians and held a prisoner for two years suffering untold hardships during her captivity. During her absence, her husband, believing her dead, re-married, by which marriage he has descendants in the county. Immediately on the return of his wife, Margaret, he and his supposed second wife separated and the first married lived together, until Mr. Frazer's death, after which Mrs. Frazer was married to a Mr. Dunlap, and was by this marriage the ancestor of the Williamses of Napier, Everett and Rainsburg. She was, so tradition says, a most excellent woman and a member of the Church of England.

The first judge, "learned in the law," that presided over these courts, was James Riddle, brother of Samuel Riddle, lawyer, whom we shall hear of further on. He was the uncle of the late Hon. James M. Russell who practiced law in Bedford eighty years ago and for fifty years thereafter. As a boy I remember Judge Riddle well. He lived in Chambersburg and died there in 1838 at the age of 84 years. I recall the fact that he was buried, at his own request, in his wedding suit of sixty years before.

The members from Bedford county to the convention that adopted the constitution of September 28, 1776, were Benjamin Elliott, Thomas Coulter, ancestor of the late Supreme Judge Coulter of Greensburg, Gen. John Burd, John Wilkins, (father of the late Judge Wilkins of Pittsburg, who was also United States Senator from Pennsylvania, Secretary of War and Minister to Russia; they lived in the old stone house, one mile north of town, late Samuel Carney's), John Cessna, ancestor of the Cessnas of the county, Thomas Smith and Joseph Powell. The members of the convention of February 5, 1790, were Joseph Powell and Gen. John Piper, of Yellow Creek. The latter was a remarkable athlete in his day. Many of his exploits are narrated, one of which when past middle life was to leap across the upper open circle of the rotunda in the capitol at Harrisburg. The circle is fifteen feet in diameter and eighty feet from the floor. This was in 1818 when he was a representative.

In 1774 Judge George Woods was delegate from Bedford county to a convention in Philadelphia, called to take action sympathizing with the citizens of Boston in their resistance to British oppression culminating in the famous tea party when 342 chests of tea were emptied overboard to steep in the waters of the harbor.

In 1775 Judge Bernard Dougherty was appointed member, for Bedford county, of the State Committee of Safety, of which Benjamin Franklin was President, and Robert Morris and other distinguished men were members.

In the convention assembled in the celebrated Carpenter's Hall, Philadelphia, June 18, 1776, on call of a committee of correspondence, to take measures to take Pennsylvania government from the hands of the Provincial authorities, in compliance with the recommendation of the Continental Congress, of which Doctor Franklin, Colonel, afterward Governor McKean, Doctor Rush and other celebrities were members; Col. David Espy, Col. Samuel Davidson—ancestor of the Davidsons of West End—and Col. John Piper were delegates from Bedford county.

We have taken merely a glance at the vast amount of data in which the county is interested in common with the borough. We will be economical as possible of the remainder of the time, and yet we have the local history, the buildings and the personnel of ancient Bedford to talk about.

A second thought suggests to me that before referring to the oldest buildings, it would be better to allude, at this point, to the first court house and jails. The act of 1771, erecting the county, appointed "Gen. Arthur St. Clair, Bernard Dougherty, Esq., Thomas Coulter, William Procter and George Woods, gentlemen, or any of them, to purchase and take assurance to them and their heirs of a piece of land situate in said town (Bedford) in trust and for the use of the inhabitants of said county, and thereon to erect and build a court house and prison, sufficient to accommodate the public service of said county and for the use and convenience of the inhabitants."

In pursuance of the foregoing a purchase was made and the deed recorded as the "deed of James McCashlin to Arthur St. Clair, Bernard Dougherty, George Woods and William Procter, esquires, and Thomas Coulter, gentleman, trustees appointed by the General Assembly of the Province to erect a jail and court house in the county of Bedford, for lot No. 6, bounded partly by the public square, dated November 10, 1771; consideration one hundred pounds." The lot No. 6 referred to is that owned and occupied now by Mrs. V. B. Tate, on the northeast corner of the square. Why the permanent public buildings were not placed there, as at first intended, is not now known and probably never will be. A log building was put on the corner of the lot for the courts, and a jail, or pen of logs, which would be a curiosity now, was also put on the lot where the express office now stands. This jail was a square pen built of hewn logs, about ten feet high, with a hipped roof of clapboards having neither windows nor doors, nor other means of ingress or egress, excepting a trap door in the roof to which access was had by a ladder from the outside and a movable ladder on the inside, which was taken away after the prisoner was landed on the earthen floor. There being no percussion, nor other self-igniting matches in those days, a prisoner deprived of his weapons, flint and steel, would, unless perchance he belonged to the burrowing species, have been securely cared for. This log court house was, for many years, used as a dwelling and was taken down about 1850, by the late Samuel H. Tate, esquire, to give place to the present Tate mansion. The prison-pen had been removed more than a score of years before.

The permanent county building known as the old court house and jail, was built from 1771 to 1780, on the portion of the public square in front of where the Lutheran church now stands. It was an unusually extensive building for that day, being massively constructed of limestone, a good deal in the style of the Boquet House. It was a court house and a jail combined. The jail, with its windowless dungeon for convicts, its cell, looking out into the high-walled yard, for ordinary criminals, and its debtors' prison, with grated window, in front, occupied the lower story to the left of the entrance. The balance of the first floor, to the right, was the sheriff's residence, in the kitchen or one-story wing of which the town elections were held. The court room occupied the entire second story, and was entered by a long outside staircase, the landing of which formed a roof for the front porch below. In one corner of the court room a winding flight of steps led to the grand and other jury rooms, in the third story, or garret, under the high, steep roof, the light to which came through two windows at either broad gable end. Surmounting the center of the roof was a quaint, square belfry, with slatted windows and a tall, square, clapboarded spire, terminating in an iron rod, supporting on cross-rods, four hollow copper balls, indicating the four points of the compass. It was from the dungeon of this jail the celebrated robber and freebooter, David Lewis, made his escape, Sixty-nine years ago, by cutting through the oaken floor and burrowing under the walls, and within twenty-four hours thereafter robbed a traveler on Ray's Hill of a large sum of money, and finding himself pursued after (as was characteristic of him) from a strange combination of self-interest and benevolence, having given his money to a destitute widowed family, he joined, in disguise, his pursuers, as one of the most assiduous seekers of the daring and wily highwayman, and unsuspectingly seconded their efforts until they relinquished the chase in discouragement.

It was also from this dungeon that the quasi Rev. Spongenberg was led to his execution about one hundred years ago. He was the pastor of the German Reformed membership scattered through what is now Fulton, Bedford, Somerset, Westmoreland and Fayette counties. The facts are he was not, bona fide, a clergyman. He had been an officer in the Prussian service and had fled to the new world to escape the consequences of some wrong-doing. Being a man of liberal education he passed himself off as a minister and came for greater security into this, then, wilderness. While ministering at Berlin, now in Somerset county, the evil reports followed him, and on a Saturday, after a service preparatory to the celebration of the Holy Eucharist on the ensuing Lord's Day, one of his Elders, Glessner by name, remonstrated with him for attempting such services, under the circumstances, when Spongenberg, in a passion drew a knife from his breast and stabbed Glessner and killed him, some say at the base of the pulpit stairs, others in the front yard of the church. Spongenberg was brought to Bedford jail, tried and hanged, unrepentant to the last. This is, I believe the only case of penal execution in this county, excepting that of Rice, hanged within the present jail yard in 1841 for the murder of young McBirney on Ray's Hill. Tradition tells of the execution, by military law, of a German soldier, a tailor by trade, in 1760. He was hanged on a tree about where now is the corner of Richard and John streets. The story used to be told that he sat in the cart on his coffin smoking his pipe with the greatest nonchalance, and when the cart was driven from under him and the rope snapped in twain, letting him fall to the ground, he jumped up, cursing the awkwardness that had broken his pipe.

The old county offices were in a one-story brick building that stood on the square, between the old court house and where is now The Gazette building. This was torn down in about 1850, and the bricks were used by B. W. Garretson in building the brick house next east of the Gravel Hill reservoir. The old stone court house and jail were used as a school house and dwelling, some ten or twelve years after the present one was built. It was also used, during all its years, as a place of worship, as occasion required, by all bodies of Christians having members here. It was finally taken down by order of court, in 1838, and was a hale old structure to the last. On a hot, dry summer's day one can still trace the old foundations of the house and the yard wall in the green sod of the northwest quarter of the square.

We now come to ancient buildings of the town. The oldest of these, unquestionably, was the old fort house,—the "King's House" of colonial days—the recent destruction of which by fire we all so sincerely regret.

The evidence is conclusive that this building was standing in 1755. It was most likely built in 1754 or even earlier. The stockade fort that succeeded the smaller defenses of Ray was, no doubt, built at or about the same time. This was in the reign of George II of England and six years before George III, the oppressor of the American colonies, ascended the throne. It was in constant occupation by the British forces, larger or smaller, all through the French and Indian and succeeding wars, and thereafter for years as a place of refuge from or a nucleus of defense against the Indians. The King's House, as you all know, was of two stories, built of large hewn logs. Of late years it was weatherboarded, with shingle roof and plastered walls inside. In early days it was "chunked and daubed," in and out, and had a split clapboard roof and a clay floor.

The fort in which it stood was a pentagon, with silent points at each angle. It had one postern or gate that stood just north of the crossing in front of Mrs. Brode's residence, and another on the northeastern side toward the river. A large grove of apple trees, called "the King's Orchard," occupied the slope east of the fort. Soldiers and others were promiscuously buried in it at a very early day. This accounts for the frequent unearthing of human remains all over that part of the town in later years. The last tree of the orchard was standing on the Bollinger property as late as 1847.

Tradition says that a detachment of Braddock's army, under Col. George Washington, stopped a night at the fort, while going west in 1755. This is traditional only. What follows is history.

In 1758 the army of General Forbes, of more than 9,000 men, were encamped here on their way to relieve the beleaguered garrison at Fort Duquesne. Col. Henry Boquet, a native of the Canton Vaud in Switzerland, an accomplished officer and a veteran in several European wars, was commandant at the fort and had rendezvoused here with the Pennsylvania provincial troops. Colonel Washington, who had rendezvoused at Winchester, in command of the Virginia, North Carolina and Maryland provincial troops, joined Boquet here, during the late summer, and early in September, General Forbes, who had been detained at Carlisle by illness, marched with the British regulars, composed of four battalions of 1,000 men each, and united at Bedford with Boquet's and Washington's forces, and with them proceeded on their westward campaign.

Having vanquished the enemies of Great Britain, and terminated the French and Indian, or Seven Years' War, they returned east and again encamped at Bedford, reviewing here their army, now consisting of 8,000 men.

In August, 1759, General Stanwix encamped at the fort, while on his way to protect the northwest frontier on Lake Erie. All the letters and official documents were this year and thereafter, dated at "Bedford," or "Fort Bedford." Always before they were dated "Fort at Raystown," or "Camp at Raystown."

In 1763, during what was called the "Kiyasuta and Pontiac," or "Indian War," (a preconcerted uprising of the

OSTER'S ERROR

It's a short story. A bill came up to increase the salaries of the teachers in our public schools, conditioned on an increased appropriation from the state so as not to raise the tax rate and Hon. George W. Oster, representative in the General Assembly of Pennsylvania from Bedford county, voted against it. Will our school system ever be fully appreciated? Will our earnest, honest teachers ever receive due recognition and due compensation?

SCHOOL APPROPRIATIONS

An effort is being made by those prominent in educational circles to have the state appropriation increased from $13,000,000, as now proposed (for two years) to $15,000,000.

A glance at conditions now and in the past clearly justifies their effort to secure the increase. The appropriation per pupil was $5.20 in 1895, while the appropriation per pupil in the bill now pending would be but $4.89. It is true the proposed bill provides an increase, but the increase is not sufficient to keep the amount per pupil up to the $5.20 mark.

Again, in 1895, it is pointed out, the appropriation was 46 per cent. of the total revenue while in the present bill it falls to 25 per cent. of the total revenue.

The tax rate laid in many districts for school purposes is already high; in fact it is a positive burden on some citizens. The state has the money to spare and common sense dictates that the efficiency of the school system should be increased. Increased appropriation, then, is obviously the one essential thing to bring about the desired result without increasing the rate of taxation.

ABSENT OR DODGING

Representative George W. Oster has taken some worthy positions in the House during the present session and The Gazette has not failed to say so. His position on the resolution to bring out the bill with reference to revoking the charters of abandoned railroads we took occasion to commend last week and we noted with pleasure that he was one of 13 Republicans who were in favor of a resolution complimentary to State Treasurer Berry, by whom the first exposures of capitol graft were made.

But whither, now, is our representative drifting?

The Hulings bill which aimed at reforming civil service was killed in the House on Wednesday when a motion to suspend rules and put it on the calendar was defeated by a vote of 86 to 80. On Tuesday the friends of civil service could muster 106 of the 110 votes necessary to put it on the calendar. The Penrose and Elkins factions went to work and as a result of their persuading influences and "materials," perhaps, a number swung over and a number "dodged," and according to the reports from Harrisburg and published in the city papers,—the Legislative Record has not yet reached us,—George W. Oster was among the dodgers.

The friends of the bill made a fight to have all go on record and they won. The final test when announced showed 80 for civil service reform, 86 against it, and 41 are classed as "absent or dodging." In this list is the name of Oster.

Nineteen who voted for civil service reform on Tuesday "switched" during the darkness that divided the two days and voted against it on Wednesday. Twenty-two who were for the bill on Tuesday became "dodgers" on Wednesday—and in this list appears the name of George W. Oster, representative from Bedford county.

HALF MILLION FOR RESIDENCES

Permits Issued in Pittsburgh for This Amount in a Single Day.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 8.—All records were broken here last week in the number of permits issued by the Bureau of Building Inspection for residences in a single day. The amount of the improvements specified in these permits will aggregate close to a half million dollars. The new homes range in cost from $2,500 to $65,000.

Down town realty is selling and many old landmarks are being razed to make way for skyscrapers. Although many office buildings have been erected during the past five years the demand for offices continues to increase.

New high prices are being set each week. The improvements in the Turtle Creek Valley where the Westinghouse industries are located are greater than ever. The new Arlington Park plan of acre lots at Wilmerding is being greatly improved. G. M. Cypher & Company of McKeesport, who own these lots, report that they are selling rapidly at the low price of $800 which they are asking.

Mrs. John Ickes

Susan, wife of John Ickes, died at her home at Pleasantville on Sunday, May 5, after a long illness, aged 75 years, eight months and two days. Mrs. Ickes had her arm amputated about six weeks ago which, no doubt, hastened her death. She was a daughter of John Aldstadt and was born near Pleasantville on September 3, 1831. The following children survive: Henry, Chaunce, George, Mrs. Vickor, Mrs. Wendell and Rebecca, also the following brothers and sisters: John, William, Thomas, Mrs. Prosser, Mrs. Ake and Mrs. Ickes.

Funeral services, which were held at the late home at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, were conducted by Rev. J. W. Zehring, assisted by Rev. Chambers. Mrs. Ickes won the love and respect of the people of the community and will be greatly missed.

Abram Buzzard

Abram Buzzard died at his home in West Providence last Thursday, May 1, of spinal meningitis, at the age of 61 years, four months and 25 days. He leaves a wife and the following children: John Buzzard of Mench, Samuel of Dudley, Mrs. Mary Stake of Saxton, Mrs. Emma Johnson of Earlston, Mrs. Rosa Leader of West Providence, Mrs. Bertha Wahley and Mrs. Sarah Shumer, of Pittsburgh, and Ada and Joseph, at home. Funeral services were held at the Mt. Union Christian church in West Providence on Saturday.

Mrs. Samuel Prossell

Mrs. Mathilda Prossell, aged 70, wife of Samuel Prossell, died Monday, May 6, at her home in Allegheny, after an illness of two weeks. She was born in this county and lived in Altoona for a number of years before going to Allegheny, some seven years ago. She was a prominent member of the Third Methodist Episcopal church of Altoona. Her husband, three daughters and a son survive.

"Nearer to Thee."

"Nearer to Thee, my God, nearer to Thee!"

Thus shrilly sweet the childish treble rang,
As pausing in her play, a little maid,
In fitful snatches, all unheeding sang.

The tender prayer fell from her care—
Less lips.

As thoughtlessly as song of bird in June;
The childish voice rang out, now shrill, now sweet,

Now softly crooning the familiar tune.

"Nearer to Thee!" The maiden, older grown,
Half shyly pauses at the untried road

Which stretches out before her as she stands
Upon the threshold of her womanhood.

"Nearer to Thee," she sings, but skies are fair
And love smiles on her pathway; so the prayer

Is but the sweet refrain of an old hymn,
Without a thought of need or meaning there.

"Nearer, my God to Thee!" Heavy the cross;
The aching shoulders bend beneath the load,

And, as the hidden thorns press hard and sharp,
The tear-dimmed eyes can scarcely see the road.

"Nearer to Thee!" the quivering voice is weak
That earnestly uplifts a songful prayer;

"E'en though it be a cross that raiseth me,"
Content if so the heavy cross to bear.

"Nearer to Thee!" The shadows darkly gather;
The way is lonely and the path is steep;

Chill are the night winds sweeping through the valley,
While still the gloomy shadows grow more deep.

"Nearer to Thee!" Oh, let each toiling footstep
Be one step nearer Thee, and through the gloom;

Father, hold out Thy hand and lead Thy child
Safely through darkness up to Thee and home.

"Nearer to Thee!" Above the coffin lid,
Where drifts of blossoms lie like summer snow

About the quiet form that so softly sleeps,
No more of pain or sorrow here to know.

With broken voices, faltering here and there,
The hymn arises like a cradle-song That lulls to sleep the tranquil, sculptured form

Whose spirit mingles with the heavenly throng.

"Nearer, my God, to Thee, nearer to Thee,"
Through all life's journey every day to be

Still nearer, though we walk upon the hills
In the glad sunlight, or, still following Thee,

Pass through deep valleys that the darkness shrouds;
"Nearer, still nearer," be our prayer and song,

Till joyfully our souls shall wing their way,
Freed from their prison-house, to dwell with Thee,

And, near Thee, to rejoice in endless day.

E-S-Q

(By Outis Blaque, Esq.)
I wonder what the letters mean!

I wonder if they show
That some are stationed high in life

And some are standing low!
If yea, I wonder which they mark!

I cannot tell—can you?
Whether 'tis honor or disgrace

To be an E-s-q.

'Tis true that in another land
They do a meaning own,
And note the faintest ray that's shot
From the scintillant throne;

But, sending for a bootblack here,
I cannot tell—can you?
Why I should, would, could, or ought
To write,

"Sam Johnson, E-s-q."

And writing to a man of parts,
Whose claims to honor flow
From mighty deeds or stirring words,
What do the letters show?

That they will lustre cast on him
I cannot think—can you?
We nothing add, sir, though we write
Addendum: "E-s-q."

"But we must some distinction make,"
Indeed! 'Tis very right;
But quite as easy for the blind
To tell the dark from light.

What court shall sit upon the claims?
I would not dare—would you?
Say who shall be a simple man,
And who an E-s-q.

If thou wouldst challenge men's respect,
So labor that thy name
May glisten with the hallowed light
Upon the scroll of fame;

Our very schoolboys, sir, would laugh—
And so, I think, would you—
O'er "Commencement," written by
J. Caesar, E-s-q."

I really wonder men of rank
And men of genius, too,
Don't drop forever, and at once,
The senseless E-s-q.

See, gentlemen, we nameless folk
Are aping after you;

I marvel that you still will use
Plebeian E-s-q.

I'm no reformer; would not choose
To make myself a mark
For Custom's arrows, while her curs
In stupid chorus bark;
Follow the fashion, if you please—
It may be meat for you—
But let me shoot for rarer game
That common E-s-q.

Letter From Dr. Statler

Old Home Week, which will be celebrated August 7, 8 and 9, will bring a large number of visitors from all sections of the United States to their home of former years who will have their eyes open to see the improvement in Bedford during their absence. We should show to our visitors that we are still pushing ahead with the rest of the world.

I would suggest and request that all our people make a general cleanup around their residences. Let all gutters be thoroughly cleaned out and all alleys be cleaned and cleared of old rubbish and wagons, and especially all ashpiles, etc. Some of our alleys are a disgrace to the town especially since Bedford is known as a health resort. The Burgess and Council should request all citizens to clear away rubbish and then if it is not done by the citizens it should be done by the authorities at the expense of the property holders.

Had I in my power I would make Bedford one of the cleanest and healthiest places in Pennsylvania. Places in the borough are an eyesore to our own people and to visitors.

The bluff along the creek is the dumping ground of the whole town, and certainly it does not add to either the beauty of the town or the health of the citizens. As president of the Old Home Week organization I feel it my duty to call the attention of our people to the matter and urge the borough authorities to take such steps as are necessary to accomplish it.

We do not know but this may be an awakening in the history of the town. Some visitors may come here who may think this is just the place to locate some industry which will be of value to the town; but dirty streets and alleys won't bring them.

Let the town put on a new dress so her own people will not know her; so that they will say, "She is fair to look upon." Do this for Old Home Week and for the visitors and strangers who will be with us on that occasion.

A decided improvement could be made by trimming up the shade trees, especially on the public square. The condition of the trees is bad and a good "cutting out" would add much to the appearance of the square.

Another black eye to our town is the old Presbyterian and colored cemetery with its unkempt graves and its wild, desolate condition. Steps should be taken to have a law passed by the Legislature for its abandonment. The site should be turned into a public park. As such it could be made a beautiful place by planting shade trees and shrubbery.

Let these matters be taken up by the thinking people of our town and let us improve it in appearance and health instead of letting some parts of it run to decay. S. F. Statler.

Body Found in Water

Mrs. Rose Gage, widow of the late Frank R. Gage and sister-in-law of Vice President and General Manager Carl M. Gage of the H. & E. T. R. Co., was discovered in several feet of water under the stone arch bridge of the Pennsylvania railroad, just below Huntingdon, on Sunday. She had been missing from her home since Thursday night. Since the death of a son in February Mrs. Gage had been suffering great mental distress and it is supposed she wandered to the river and thus met her death.

Two sons survive, the youngest of whom, Benjamin, lived with his mother in West Huntingdon. The other son, Fred R. Gage, is supervisor of the H. & E. T. R. Co. and was lately married to Miss Helen Lauder, daughter of Manager William Lauder of the Colonial Iron Company of Riddlesburg.

ACCIDENT AT RIDDLESBURG

Three Killed and Three Injured Last Thursday.

About 1:30 o'clock last Thursday afternoon, at Riddlesburg, three workmen met instant death and three others were seriously injured in an accident at the Colonial Iron Company's plant. Twelve or fifteen Italians were engaged in unloading stock from a car on a trestle about 20 feet high, when a shifting engine threw another car against the one in which the men were working, forcing it over the end of the trestle. One of the Italians, who was most seriously injured, was taken to the Altoona hospital that evening. One foot was severed, one arm badly crushed and he received several wounds in the head; it is believed he will die.

BEDFORD IN YE OLDEN TIME

Indians in which the Shawnee, Delaware and other Ohio tribes took the lead, which had its inception in jealousy of the growing power of the whites, and was conceived and planned by Kiyasuta, chief of the Senecas, and Pontiac, chief of the Ottawas. Boquet, then Brigadier General, marched west, going through and camping at Fort Bedford on his way to the relief of Fort Pitt, which has been built on the ruins of Fort Duquesne, left to go to decay after the campaign of five years before. The history of this war is thrilling in the extreme, but I must exclude it, as well as a hundred other things I would like to talk about and you would be interested to hear, for want of time, except just so much as is indispensable to our present subject. All the forts, Bedford amongst the rest, were in imminent danger. The inhabitants for many miles around were flocking to them for safety. Volunteers from Bedford and elsewhere had gathered for the defense of the several forts. Fort Ligonier was terribly pressed. Captain Currie, a Scotchman, who commanded at Fort Bedford, had promptly sent out of his slender garrison twenty good marksmen to its aid. These were intercepted by the savages, but making a sally they reached the fort, (Ligonier) unharmed by the random shots of the Indians. Many of the refugees did not succeed in reaching Fort Bedford. Some forty or more were slain or were carried into captivity. For some reason the fort was not attacked, which was fortunate for those in it, for the garrison were few in numbers. In the meantime two companies of infantry, from General Boquet's advancing army, arrived, by forced marches, and they were safe. On July 25, General Boquet with the rear of the army reached Bedford and made his headquarters at the large stone house, now Adam Carr's, opposite the "King's House," and without the fort, as also were many other houses at the time. It was thereafter spoken of as the "Boquet House," and Governor John Penn so designated it when in 1766, he gave his Surveyor General, John Lukens, orders "to lay out a town in Penn's Manor, to be called Bedford, the streets of which to be made parallel and at right angles with Boquet's house." This explains why the old fort house stood at an eccentric angle as regards the town. It was built several years before and placed to suit the knoll on which it stood. Captain Lems, who built the Boquet house while he was commandant, about 1758, had, being a free mason, located it by the points of the compass. Captain Lems returned to England at an early day, having sold his house to George Woods, in whose possession and that of his heirs, it remained until 1846 or '47. Woods also owned what is known as the Job Mann farm over the river.

INVEST A FEW DOLLARS IN A HOME ENTERPRISE

The Bedford County Prospecting and Developing Company, of St. Clairsville, Pa., was organized for the purpose of testing for oil, gas and other minerals which U. S. Government surveyors have located in and near St. Clairsville, Pa.

Specimens of rocks have been tested, and the same truth brought out. It is the intention of the company to issue for sale 40,000 shares of stock at 10 cents per share, non-assessable to complete the work. Already more than 15,000 shares have been sold. Work will commence as soon as stock is all sold, and continue until oil or gas is struck in paying quantities. On May 9 there will be another meeting in the Band Hall at which time a constitution and by-laws will be adopted, also application will be made for a charter.

Do you know that 100 shares of stock in a well that runs 10 barrels daily will pay you monthly $18; 200 bbl, $36; 500 bbl, $90; 1,000 bbl, $180; 2,500 bbl, $450; 5,000 bbl, $900? Has this not been done in other fields, is there any reason why we cannot do the same or better? Send applications for shares to the secretary or one of the following authorized agents:

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE FAILED

Man Died of Pneumonia—New York Department of Insurance Now a Public Scandal.

New York, May 7.—There is trouble in the Christian Science camp; a man has died of acute pneumonia without proper medical attendance; he trusted Christian Science and it failed him; he did not realize it, for he trusted the religious cult to the last; after his death his sister, who had faithfully attended him during his illness and who was not a Christian Scientist, applied to the coroner for an indictment against the other parties in the house for not summoning a regular practitioner when the patient was taken sick; he decided that as the sick man had made no request, nor had any been refused, there was "no cause for action." A sick person must be allowed to select his own mode of treatment; otherwise you destroy every vestige of personal freedom. Several similar cases have occurred here but, so far none of them have found their way into the courts.

Some weeks ago I spoke of the muddled condition of our politics; since then we've gone from bad to worse; we are developing a warfare, harsh, personal and bitter, such as the state has never known before and which has severely shaken a number of recalcitrant Republicans who have, up to the present time, been a dead weight and a disgrace to the party.

No respectable man in the state doubts the honesty of Governor Hughes; when he was elected, he considered it his duty, which he had sworn to perform, to investigate the manner in which the great affairs entrusted to his care were conducted, and for which he was responsible to the people. The Department of Insurance had long been a public scandal; it had millions of dollars with which to reward the unfaithful servants who betrayed their trust and they were lavish of their bounty; the opportunities for graft were enormous, and every new commissioner waxed fat upon the spoils. When Governor Hughes was inaugurated a man named Kelsy occupied the position of Commissioner of Insurance and the report of his evil doings induced the Governor to send for him first, to examine into the administration of his office; it only took a few questions to prove his ignorance and guilt, and the Governor demanded his resignation; this the man flatly refused; he sought his friends in the Legislature who had secured him the place and who had shared the plunder, and besought them to stand by him and defy the Governor. Senator Raines, the author of the disgraceful Raines Hotel bill, which caused such a sensation a few years ago, became his champion and is reported to have said in the course of his speech, "If Governor Hughes begins to use the big stick, everybody knows that that will be the end of Governor Hughes." Merciful Heavens,—has it come to this, that a Senator, chosen by the freeman's ballot, dare rise in our magnificent council-chamber and give notice to the Governor of the state of New York that, unless he joins the grafters and closes his eyes while thieves are looting the public treasury, his political career is closed. Never was there such a shameful speech declared in any public body. Are the people of the state of New York willing to endure this thing? Is every voter in the state willing to stand under the odium of that infamous speech of Senator Raines? It is no longer a question of Democratic or Republican politics but of common honesty in the administration of the law—which today costs us millions of dollars. Bad as the Senator's record has been, he went one step lower then and made the mistake of his life; his vanity has ruined him; he imagines himself the state of New York but in the state of New York he is a very inferior item. The citizens of this noble state are proud of its record; errors in its administration there have been,—are today,—and probably will be in the future, but there has always been virtue enough among the people to rectify any flagrant wrong, and that Senator Raines will find to his cost. The blow struck at Governor Hughes is also aimed at President Roosevelt, who has stood firmly by our worthy Governor.

The town of Hempstead has had quite an excitement during the past week; a respected Episcopal minister has eloped with a seventeen-year-old girl who was confined to his care by her dying father when she was only seven years of age. He betrayed that sacred trust, abandoned his lawful wife and fled with his ward to some unknown place, with the brand of Cain upon his brow; there will it remain until his dying day; the ghost of the dying father will stalk at his back under the beams of the noon-day sun and will fright his visions in the night; no peace can his guilty soul know while life lasts.

HARRISBURG LETTER

and heads athinking everywhere in this country, and people are beginning to ask themselves the question: has the President of the United States the right to condemn a man before he has had a chance to be tried upon the facts and the evidence?

Mr. Roosevelt is the Chief Magistrate of the United States. If he were a private citizen he might, with propriety, express his opinion of other individuals, subject only to the penalties which the law attaches to slander and libel. His opinion, then, as to the guilt or innocence of an accused person would be presumed to have no effect upon the trial of that person. But as Chief Magistrate of the United States his publicly expressed denunciation carries with it the weight of his great office. The injury resulting from such recklessness of utterance on the part of the President of the United States, serious as it may be to the individual against whom it is directed, is chiefly to the community at large and to the office which Mr. Roosevelt holds.

Comparatively few persons are interested in what may befall Moyer, Heywood or Harriman, but the whole country is concerned in the preservation of the dignity and character of the presidential office, and the observance of proprieties by any man holding that office. Mr. Roosevelt defends his course in publicly denouncing these accused men by declaring that the persons who have protested to him against his action are guilty themselves of trying to interfere with justice, and he condemns this action. If it be true it should be condemned, but can it be cited as justification for similar action on the part of the President of the United States? What is improper for a private citizen is infinitely more so for the President of the United States.

Is it for him to determine and declare who are and who are not desirable citizens? His judgment may sometimes be right, as to this, but it may be wrong in many instances, and whatever his opinion might be as a private citizen, he as President of the United States has no right to pass his individual judgment to the prejudice of either the most powerful or the humblest American citizen.

The complaint against Mr. Roosevelt is not made in defense of Mr. Moyer, Mr. Heywood, nor Mr. Harriman, but is in defense of official propriety, involving what is very close to every good, patriotic citizen. Mr. Roosevelt is not less subject, holding the high office he does, to criticism for recklessness and radicalism, than is the ignorant agitator occupying a less responsible position. He declares that a "square deal" means treating all offenders alike. He cannot, therefore, object to being criticized for that recklessness of expression which he criticizes in those of humbler position. As to the courage displayed in his thus repeating, with greater emphasis, his denunciation of men as undesirable citizens, it might have required greater courage for him to have retracted to the extent of expressing regret for having made public his private opinion of men whose characters are undergoing the test of judicial examination. His letter is adroit rather than courageous, and is calculated to obscure the real issue—that of the propriety of his action—and on examination the letter seems to disclose either an obtuseness on this point which is extraordinary for a man in his position or else a deliberate, demagogical disingenuousness. ## A Nation of Cripples Rheumatism Beyond Control

The Only Hope to Rheumatic Sufferers Is Uric-O Treatment.

If rheumatism continues to spread as it has in the past few years, it would seem as though we would before long become a nation of cripples. The terrible destructiveness of this disease is apparent on every side of us. Almost nine out of ten of the cripples one meets had their affliction brought on by Rheumatism. How many thousands more there are that are hopelessly bed-ridden and whom we never see. Rheumatism, from the very nature of the disease, can never cure itself and if neglected is bound to grow worse rather than better. If you ever have any twinges of Rheumatism go to your druggist and get a bottle of Uric-O, the wonderful new Rheumatic Specific. It will cure you and it is the only treatment in the world that will cure you permanently and thoroughly. Uric-O cures by its direct action on the muscles, blood and kidneys. It seeks out the poisonous Uric and Rheumatic Acid and drives it from the system and it is only a treatment of such a nature that will ever cure Rheumatism. Liniments and plaster only serve to drive it from one spot to another. They never cure Rheumatism, because it is primarily a blood disease, and until the blood is cleared from the poison, a cure cannot take place.

There never was a case of Rheumatism that Uric-O could not cure and you should not put off taking it. You can test Uric-O free of charge if you wish. Just cut out this advertisement and send it to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., together with your name and the name of your druggist, and state that you have never used Uric-O and would like to try it. They will give you free, through your druggist, a 75 cent bottle, which you can test and try to your own satisfaction. Uric-O is sold and personally recommended in Bedford by F. W. Jordan. - May 3-2t.

Three Million Dollars for Highways in State.

R. R. COMMISSION BILL

North Bill Referred—Will Give Voters Opportunity to Express Choice for Senators.

Harrisburg, May 8.—After once defeating the project the House went on record as favoring a $25,000,000 bond issue for the improvement of state highways. It also passed finally the Roberts bill appropriating $3,000,000 for highways. Of this amount not more than one-half may be expended in one year. The bill having already passed the Senate now goes to the Governor.

The $25,000,000 proposed for highway improvements is provided for in the shape of a resolution to amend the constitution, increasing the borrowing capacity of the state. It was introduced in the House at the request of former State Senator William Flinn of Pittsburg, who is a good-roads enthusiast. When the resolution first came before the House it met with opposition and finally was defeated. This action was subsequently reconsidered, the resolution was placed on the postponed calendar and it was sent through with exactly the required constitutional majority of the House—104. The vote against it was 52.

Another House bill to pass finally in the Senate was that prohibiting the "depositing, casting, throwing or placing of packages, parcels, or samples of medicine or candy in the house, buildings, porches or verandas, or on the lawns, lands, streets or public highways within the Commonwealth." Violation of the proposed act is made punishable by a fine of $10 or imprisonment for one year, or both at the discretion of the court for each offense. The bill now goes to the Governor.

Governor Stuart approved the measure appropriating $2,500,000 for the care and treatment of the indigent insane. This was one of the first bills to be introduced in the Legislature. Provision is made for an addition of fifty cents a week to the maximum amount allowed for the maintenance of each patient.

Recently a bill was passed by the Legislature and approved by the Governor authorizing the State Lunacy Board to transfer patients from one insane hospital to another. The purpose of this is to relieve overcrowding in the asylums at Danville, Norristown and one or two other places until additional quarters may be provided. Governor Stuart is giving his personal attention to the enactment of legislation to improve the condition of the state's institutions for the insane. To members of the Legislature he has stated that he regards it the duty of the state to do everything possible in this direction.

The Governor also signed the Hapgood bill requiring newspapers to publish in the editorial page the names of owners, managing editors and managers. The bill was introduced as a companion-measure to the Salus-Grady press muzzle.

Other bills to receive the approval of the Governor are the following: Permitting children who reside two miles or more by public roads from the nearest school in their own district to attend any more convenient school in another district without the consent of the directors of either district, and making the district where they reside liable for the cost of tuition to the district where they attend; providing for the recording of certificates concerning matters of bankruptcy in the offices of recorders of deeds.

The auditors employed by the capitol probers have completed the calculations of the cost of the State House, room by room, and the figures are being transmitted to the probers as fast as prepared.

For the decorating and furnishing of the House caucus room the state paid John H. Sanderson $117,253.40; for the Senate caucus room $83,242.97; total for the two rooms, $205,501.37. According to the testimony of sub-contractors who have appeared before the probers this work cost Sanderson not more than one-fourth of the amount charged. Architect Huston was paid a commission of 4 per cent. by the state for designing these furnishings.

The Dunsmore Railway Commission bill was reported from committee and read the first time in the Senate today. The bill, as amended by the Senate committee, fixes the number of commissioners at three instead of five, reduces their salaries from $7,500 to $6,000 a year and provides that it shall take effect on January 1 next.

The bill permitting a defendant in a criminal libel suit to offer in evidence as a defense the truth of the alleged libelous matter, and the bill amending the corrupt practices act so that borough and township officers shall not be required to file expense accounts were among the Senate bills reported favorably.

The North bill, to provide for the nomination of all state officers and giving voters an opportunity to express their choice for United States Senator at the uniform primaries, was taken up for first reading. Mr. Brown of Philadelphia raised the point of order that two bills of similar import having been defeated by the Senate, this bill could not be considered. On motion of Mr. Sproul the bill and the point of order were referred to the judiciary special committee.

"The Judge's Tribulations," given by local talent at Firemen's Hall on May 1 and 2 and at the American Opera House, Hopewell, on May 4, was a financial and artistic success. The play is an excellent one and depicting, as it does, the struggles which oft occur between capital and labor, is necessarily of intense interest. Lighting up the darker scenes was an abundance of rich humor. Leslie Hollinger was manager of the play and besides drilling the cast enacted the role of Judge Buttons in a way which brought hearty applause and the most favorable criticism. Every part was so well played that we cannot refrain from commenting briefly on each one. John Herman, who was cast as Julius, a negro servant, simply brought down the house, to use an old expression. His antics were indeed laughable. Augustus Stally also did well in a similar part. James Henry, as Hans, the Dutch cook, contributed a good share of the fun. Leslie Blackburn, the hero of the piece, was very satisfactory, while Charles Burns made an acceptable and realistic villain. Miss Lillian McDaniel played well the character of the Judge's ward and won much praise. Miss Lou Welshonce impersonated the role assigned to her, that of an old lady, in a highly creditable manner. Miss Pearl Nycum, as Dolly Dimples, was all that could be desired and her personality added a charm to the part. There were several minor characters well filled. Leo Gienger had charge of the business arrangements and left nothing undone to make the affair a success. A neat sum has been added to the treasury of the fire company for the benefit of which the play was produced.

George C. Means and family, of Cumberland, are visiting relatives and friends here.

THE STATES AT JAMESTOWN

Beautiful Structures of Colonial Architecture.

Norfolk, Va.—The States of the Union have recognized the importance of representation at the Jamestown Exposition and few, if any, will be conspicuous by their absence but, all, or nearly all, will have comprehensive exhibits and at least twenty-five will have buildings. The general architecture of the state buildings is colonial though some are representations of historic homes or halls.

Virginia, the hostess of her sister states on this occasion, leads with a fine mansion of the colonial period; Pennsylvania, has Independence Hall; Maryland, home of Charles Carroll of Carrollton, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence; New Jersey, a model of Washington's headquarters at Morristown; Ohio, "Adena," the first stone house erected west of the Allegheny mountains; Kentucky, a reproduction of Daniel Boone's fort at Boonesboro, to be erected from rough timbers from the site of the fort in Kentucky; Connecticut, the Col. Talmadge home at Litchfield; Massachusetts, the old State House at Boston; New Hampshire, the John Langdon home at Portsmouth, while Rhode Island, Delaware, Missouri, Vermont, Illinois, North Carolina, West Virginia, North Dakota, Louisiana and other states will have colonial buildings or summer homes.

Georgia, the Empire State of the South, is building a model of Bullock Hall, in Cobb county, Ga., the home of President Roosevelt's mother. The twelve rooms in this building will be furnished by the leading cities of the state, such as Atlanta, Savannah, Augusta, Columbus, Statesboro, Macon, Valdosta, Cordele, Albany, Waycross and others. The state appropriated the sum of $30,000 for an exhibit at the Jamestown Exposition and the funds for the erection of the building have been raised by popular subscription. The State building fronts on Willoughby Boulevard and the waters of Hampton Roads and is a handsome structure of colonial architecture. With broad verandas and porches it affords a fine point of vantage from which to view the harbor events which are to be among the spectacular features of the Exposition.

In the various exhibit buildings of the Exposition the products of the Georgia farms, mines and work-shops and the educational and commercial interests are displayed; and in the historic relic building, which is a fire-proof structure, there are many priceless heirlooms and relics which have been gathered to represent Colonial

TORTURING PAIN.

Half This Man's Sufferings Would Have Killed Many a Person, But Doan's Cured Him.

Thousands of grateful people are telling every day how Doan's Kidney Pills cured them of distressing and dangerous kidney and bladder troubles. Yet other thousands are suffering every day from these same ills. Why? They are either very negligent or very skeptical. Neglect of kidney disorders leads to dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease and other fatal diseases.

Sincere, honest testimony like the following should convince every skeptic.

A. C. Sprague, stock dealer, of Normal, Ill., writes: "For two whole years I was doing nothing but buying medicines to cure my kidneys. I do not think that any man ever suffered as I did and lived. The pain in my back was so bad that I could not sleep at night. I could not ride a horse and sometimes was unable even to ride in a car. My condition was critical when I sent for Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and they cured me. Now I can go anywhere and do as much as anybody. I sleep well and feel no discomfort at all."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Sprague will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

The May Burr McIntosh

Considerable space is given in this number to a review of the 32nd Annual Exhibition of the National Academy of Design. The pictures of many artists are reproduced in an art tone ink of rare beauty. This feature of the May number, however, is but one of a number that are unusually attractive.

The portrait form contains fine reproductions of a number of prominent opera singers, actresses and prominent people in other walks of life. The People of Note deal with such celebrities as Joaquin Miller, the late President of France, the late Thos. B. Aldrich, poet, and the late Maurice Grau, the famous manager of Grand Opera.

The color work in this number is unusually dainty and suitable to the season. Lovers of the beautiful in portraiture and fine photographic reproductions will find this issue one of the most satisfactory of the year. Burr Publishing Company, New York.

Why Thunder Sours Milk

To many persons the curdling of milk in a thunder storm is a mysterious and unintelligible phenomenon. Yet the whole process really is simple and natural. Milk, like most other substances, contains millions of bacteria. The milk bacteria that in a day or two, under natural conditions, would cause the fluid to sour, are peculiarly susceptible to electricity. Electricity inspires and invigorates them, affecting them as alcohol, cocaine or strong tea affect men. And under the current's influence they fall to work with amazing energy, and instead of taking a couple of days to sour the milk they accomplish the task completely in a half hour.

It is not the thunder in a storm that sours milk; it is the electricity in the air that does it. With an electric battery it is easy, on the same principle, to sour the freshest milk. A strong current excites the microbes to supermicrobic exertions and in a few minutes they do a job that under ordinary conditions would take them a couple of days.

Mrs. S. Joyce, 180 Sullivan St., Claremont, N. H., writes: "About a year ago I bought two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It cured me of a severe case of Kidney trouble of several years' standing. It certainly is a grand, good medicine, and I heartily recommend it." Ed. D. Heckerman.

Household Hints

When things must go into or come out of a very hot stove, the backs of the hands need protection almost as much as the palms. So have half your kitchen holders made of double size, and stitched together on three sides, so the hand can be thrust into them almost as into a mitten. This will save the hands from getting red, rough backs, which readily crack and chafe.

To make paper transparent saturate it in castor oil and then dry it. To remove smoke stains from ivory immerse it in benzine and go over it with a brush.

Boil six each kernels in a quart of milk to be used for custard; it will improve the flavor.

To whiten doorsteps place two pounds powdered glue in a saucepan with one and a half pints of water. Dissolve it over a slow fire; when melted add one pound powdered whiting, stirring it in gradually. This should be applied to the steps with a stiff brush. If the mixture becomes too stiff, add more water. Only very hard rain will remove this preparation, hence the saving of labor is great.

A weak solution of turpentine poured down the water pipes once a week will drive the water bugs away. Nail stains may be removed from wood by scrubbing the wood with a solution of oxalic acid, half a pint of acid to a quart of boiling water.

Weak soapuds or aqua ammonia will clean bronze statuary or bronze ornaments in the fine lines where dust has collected.

For cleaning tinware there is nothing better than dry flour applied with newspaper.

Keep all the kitchen utensils in one place, and a small one at that; it will save time and steps.

A SIMPLE CURE FOR PILES

Pile sufferers know that ointments and other local treatments sometimes relieve but never cure. They don't remove the cause.

There is a little tablet that is taken internally, removes the cause of Piles, and cures any case of any kind no matter how long standing.

Hem-Roid is the discovery of Dr. Leonhardt of Lincoln, Neb., one of the most distinguished and successful physicians in the Western States.

Near to Cincinnati

"A Cincinnati man who was in New York," says Attorney General Ellis of Ohio, "made use of a telephone booth in Jersey City. When he came out he asked the girl in charge for the bill."

"Twenty cents, please," she said. "That's too much for the distance."

"I can't help it, sir," she said icily, "but that is the charge."

"It's an outrage," he retorted. "Why, in Cincinnati a man can telephone to hell for 10 cents."

"Yes," said the girl, "but you must remember that in Cincinnati, the place you speak of is within the city limits."—Kansas City Star.

The Best Kind of Street Gown

The best kind of street gown for everyday wear for the working girl is a plain well-tailored gown made with a plaited skirt and three-quarter length coat, made absolutely plain with only buttons for trimming.

This kind of a gown lasts indefinitely and can be cleaned and pressed and worn until there is scarcely a thread left.

The majority of the badly dressed women suffer from over-dressing. They wear too many frilly trimmings, stickpins, fancy belts, beads and all that sort of thing.

Colors of Lakes

Some lakes are distinctly blue; others present various shades of green, so that in some cases they are hardly distinguishable from their level, grass-covered banks; a few are almost black. The Lake of Geneva is azure hue; both Lake Constance and the Lake of Lucerne are green; the color of the Mediterranean has been called indigo. The Lake of Brien is greenish yellow, and its neighbor, the Lake of Thun, is blue.

Kidney complaint kills more people than any other disease. This is due to the disease being so insidious that it gets a good hold on the system before it is recognized. Foley's Kidney Cure will prevent the development of fatal disease if taken in time. Ed. D. Heckerman.

Dairy Jottings

To secure all there is in the product of the cow, one should make his butter and sell direct to consumers. There is no best dairy breed, but the general dairymen cannot go far wrong if he selects good types of the dairy cow from the Holstein, Ayrshire, Jersey or Guernsey.

Good air and sunlight in the barn, healthy cows kept clean, a good cream separator with a good tank and plenty of ice, and careful handling of the milk and cream, will secure good results.

The cheapest and best way to raise a dairy calf is to feed with its mother's milk for three weeks, then gradually change to skim milk with a little flaxseed for another three weeks, then change to grain gradually. After four months old they will grow very well on a mixture of one hundred pounds linseed meal, twenty-four pounds ground flax, fifty pounds of low grade flour, mixed thoroughly, also some choice clover hay, bran or crushed oats daily. If there is plenty of fresh separator milk it may be fed instead of natural milk after the first few days.

A little Kodol taken occasionally especially after eating, will relieve sour stomach, belching and heartburn. J. B. Jones, Newport, Tenn., writes: "I am sure three one dollar bottles of your Kodol positively cured me of dyspepsia, and I can recommend it as that was three years ago and I haven't been bothered since with it." Kodol is guaranteed to give relief. Sold by Ed. D. Heckerman.

What Jamestown Celebrates

Jamestown, the first permanent English settlement in America, occupied the site of the old Spanish settlement of San Miguel, founded in 1526, but soon abandoned. The English colonists arrived May 13, 1607. In September, 1676, the town was almost completely destroyed by Nathaniel Bacon, and until 1693, when it was supplanted by Williamsburg, it was the capital of Virginia. The site was originally a peninsula, but is now a small island about 37 miles from Norfolk. Nothing remains but the ruins of the church tower and a few tombs, and the inhabitants number about 15. The grounds of the Exposition are not on Jamestown Island, but front on Hampton Roads near Norfolk.—Baltimore Sun.

When your food has not been properly digested the entire system is impaired in the same proportion. Your stomach needs help. Kodol For Indigestion and Dyspepsia not only digests what you eat, it tones the stomach and adds strength to the whole body. Makes rich, pure blood. Kodol conforms to the National Pure Food and Drug Law. Sold by Ed. D. Heckerman.

A Hemstitched Guimpe

An easy and very quick way to make quite an elaborate guimpe yoke is to draw the thread sufficiently to form sixteenth of an inch wide stripes at inch and a half distances. Hemstitch both edges and embroider some pretty simple vine, or else featherstitch in vine effect on the parts between. The drawn lines can end at graduated distances to form the yoke as exactly as possible the size to show above the dress edge, and thus avoid any extra or wasted work.

The Modesty of Women

Naturally makes them shrink from the indelicate questions, the obnoxious examinations, and unpleasant local treatments, which some physicians consider essential in the treatment of diseases of women. Yet, if help can be had, it is better to submit to this ordeal than to let the disease grow and spread. The trouble is that so often the woman undergoes all the annoyance and shame for nothing. Thousands of women who have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription write in appreciation of the cure which dispenses with the examinations and local treatments. There is no other medicine so sure and safe for delicate women as "Favorite Prescription." It cures debilitating drains, irregularity and female weakness. It always helps. It almost always cures. It is strictly non-alcoholic, non-secret, all its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper; contains no deleterious or habit-forming drugs, and every native medicinal root entering into its composition has the full endorsement of those most eminent in the several schools of medical practice. Some of these numerous and strongest of professional endorsements of its ingredients, will be found in a pamphlet mailed around the bottle, also in a booklet wrapped free on request, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. These professional endorsements should have far more weight than any amount of the ordinary lay, or non-professional testimonials.

The most intelligent women now-a-days insist on knowing what they take as medicine instead of opening their mouths like a lot of young birds and gulping down whatever is offered them. "Favorite Prescription" is of known composition. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 3 stamps for cloth-bound. If sick consult the Doctor, free of charge by letter. All such communications are held sacredly confidential.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate and regulate stomach, liver and bowels.

COAST RESORTS OF CALIFORNIA

Healthful and Invigorating Climate—Superior Attractions.

The coast of California extends from 32 degrees in the south to 42 degrees in the north, with a coast line of over 900 miles, reaching from the Gulf of Mexico in the south to Oregon in the north. It has fully 100 sea-side resorts of so great a variety in temperature, climate, and shore conditions as to out-rival the entire Atlantic sea-board from the Canadian line down to Mexico, and equals in many respects the famous watering places on the shores of the Mediterranean.

On the coast of California may be found the turbulent sea with breakers, mountain high, dashing furiously against towering rocks, and again, miles of level beach combed by the waves which exhaust their strength upon the white and glittering sand and recede peacefully into the depth of the ocean. A little further on, the ocean is found as placid as the waters of an inland lake. Fishing is abundant from one end of the coast to the other. Thousands of persons follow that pursuit as an occupation, while other thousands do so for pleasure and pastime.

It would be futile even to attempt to indulge in any detailed description of the luring attractions of all the noted resorts that can be found on this coast. Omitting Del Norte county, which lies in the extreme northern end of California and has hardly been invaded by fishermen and hunters for sport, we will mention Humboldt county, which lies nearly in the extreme northwestern part of California and has 108 miles of coast line, the entire length covered with almost unbroken forest from the mountain summit of the eastern boundary to the ocean beach, including a belt of as fine timber as can be found anywhere. Humboldt Bay, which is situated half way between the northern and southern boundaries of the county, contains a beautiful sheet of water 14 miles in length and from one-half of a mile to four miles in width. Humboldt county has many attractions for out-door sports for the entire length of its coast line.

Mendocino county joins Humboldt on the south and boasts of no less than 80 attractive resorts on its rugged shores, from Bear Harbor to Gualala. Its little towns, harbors, and inlets have not been invaded by pleasure seekers or are they known as resorts, but far greater attractions for a quiet vacation and genuine sport can be found here than at most fashionable resorts.

It is needless to mention Sonoma, Marin and San Mateo counties, which are within immediate reach of San Francisco and are too well known to need additional praise. Directly south of San Mateo is Santa Cruz county, famous for its magnificent beach and its healthful mountain resorts close to the sea shore. According to one of the greatest scientists, who has made a close study of such things, no American body of water has a greater variety of fish than can be found in the bay at Santa Cruz. This is equally true of the waters near the bay for a distance of many miles north or south. Monterey county borders on Santa Cruz on the south. It is a place where spring lingers all the year with ideal resorts by the seaside, where lofty trees shelter the shore beneath the sunny sky and an even temperature, neither too warm nor too cold. This is the ideal spot which has made California more famous perhaps than any other of its coast resorts.

San Luis Obispo county, of which little is known outside of California, has ample attractions on its coast line for those who enjoy fishing, boating and hunting. It has few resorts that are known as such but has many places of superior attractions. Santa Barbara, which lies south of San Luis Obispo, is a favorite resort for tourists who come from all parts of the United States and from across the Atlantic Ocean. Its climate is admirable, healthful and invigorating. The town of Santa Barbara and a few other places on the coast have become noted resorts, while a great many more though less pretentious spots, in the same county, with the same climate and far greater inducements for hunting and fishing, are unknown outside of California.

To the south of Santa Barbara is Ventura; among the smallest counties in the state. The Pacific Ocean washes 50 miles of its southern border and the Santa Barbara Channel, a veritable summer sea, is really a part of the Pacific Ocean. The air is balmy, the temperature mild and even all the year. Ventura has no fashionable resorts but it has an abundance of towns, villages and settlements along its romantic coast, where visitors will find generous hospitality at a small cost, and unlimited sport and recreation.

Los Angeles is a next door neighbor of Ventura and but one step south of the latter. Nature has been rather lavish in giving Los Angeles county an abundance of blessings. Its climate is as perfect as can be found; its sea coast is not very extensive, but its attractions are fully equal to any on the Atlantic or Pacific coasts. Orange county lies immediately south of Los Angeles, with a limited coast line and a number of towns and settlements on the shore. The climate is genial and there is an abundance of game on land and in the water. San Diego county is the last in the chain of California's constellations and is known to the outside world by its famous resorts such as Coronado, Point Loma, Pacific Beach and a few others equally attractive but not so widely known.

Old Jamestown

Joe Mitchell Chapple in the National Magazine for May: On the evening of my visit to this quaint old city, we attended service in the Burton Parish Church, and I paused for a moment before entering, to look at the picture the moonlight made of the ancient edifice and its surrounding churchyard. Inside, the pews are very high, and it is just possible for a grown person to look over them when seated. They recall those fascinating southern stories of bright eyes seen in church, which I could never quite understand until it occurred to me, while in this old church, that the eyes and head-gear were about all that the young gallant could see of his fair lady, unless he was in the same pew—and then, well, that is entirely different.

One pew is preserved for the descendants of Pocahontas, and here also is shown the first communion set ever used in Jamestown, and the font in which Pocahontas was baptized and transformed from a beautiful Indian princess into the wife of that sturdy colonist John Rolfe, though her heart may still have been beating with regret for the lost John Smith, whom she supposed to be dead. Today her children have an organization which meets annually; the famous John Randolph of Roanoke was a direct descendant of Pocahontas.

SHORT TALKS BY L. T. COOPER.

CONSTIPATION.

I can tell a person who is constipated on sight. Their complexion is pasty or yellow. Their eyes are dull, and they look and feel sleepy. No wonder they do. The bowels are a sewer. They carry away the poisonous refuse. If they don't act the poisonous matter is absorbed by the body, and headaches, dullness, bad complexion and eventually serious troubles result.

SAMUEL BOOREN.

There is no better rule for good health than that the bowels should move every day at the same hour if possible. Regularity can be acquired by making a habit of this. Foolish people neglect this and when chronic constipation effects them they take pills every few days to force the bowels to perform their natural function. As years go on they require more and more pills. This should be stopped. Cooper's New Discovery will build up the stomach and cause the bowels to act naturally. While taking the medicine get the habit of regularity, then gradually stop taking the medicine.

Here is a sample of letters from those who have tried it:

"For sixteen years I have suffered from stomach and liver trouble, and chronic constipation. I had frequent headaches and always felt tired and worn out. I heard of Cooper's New Discovery and began its use. After I had finished one bottle I was wonderfully improved. Constipation gave way to a pleasing regularity of the bowels and I ate better, slept better and felt better than I had for months. It is the greatest medicine I have ever known." Samuel Booren, 1742 Munsey Ave., Scranton, Pa.

Our customers who have used them say the Cooper medicines do the work. We sell them.

Work and Fatigue.

What fatigues the motive power is getting to work. Once the mind is fascinated and the field of consciousness restricted to a single object the brain works without exhausting itself. Let us apply ourselves for a good time to whatever we do and have several hours of sustained labor. By quitting the task to dream, to smoke a cigarette or to watch a fly one becomes exhausted. —Paris Review.

Might Have Made a Killing.

A physician took it into his head to go rabbit shooting. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon he returned, tired out and empty handed, telling his wife that he hadn't killed a thing. Thereupon she remarked: "I told you so. If you had stayed at home and attended to your legitimate business you might have been more successful." —Chicago News.

Sweetly Said.

The influence of locality upon speech is illustrated by a reply received from a Vermont farmer and quoted in the Boston Herald. The old man had been questioned in regard to the value of an estate left by one of his neighbors. "Waah," said he, with great deliberation, "we eat late he'll sugar off about $50,000."

Wash Your Monument.

The famous Washington monument, solid as it is, cannot resist the heat of the sun poured on its southern side on a mid-summer's day without a slight bending of the gigantic shaft, which is rendered perceptible by means of a copper wire 174 feet long hanging in the center of the structure and carrying a plummet suspended in a vessel of water.

Animal Voices.

A cow will moo about an octave; a dog will bark a fourth or fifth of an octave; a horse's neigh is a descent on the chromatic scale, while the donkey will bray in octaves. No donkey has ever yet given evidence of proficiency in the study of voice production.

How to Look Slim

If you wish to look slim don't dress in white or light-colored materials. Shun all large patterns.

Stripes are more becoming than spots or checks, but narrow, not broad stripes, should be worn. Choose a material the pattern of which runs in perpendicular lines.

Short skirts are still very becoming; flowing draperies, on the other hand, give grace.

A long, central line of trimming from throat to hem adds a certain height; so does a single flounce at the foot of the skirt.

Many frills should be avoided.

A tight-fitting gown is never becoming to a stout figure, and even in summer a chiton or lace scarf should be worn; it has a softening effect.

GERMS IN THE SKIN

SCIENCE IN PURSUIT

Eczema Sufferers will be Interested in a Pamphlet on Diet, Exercises, Etc., which May be Had Free at F. W. Jordan's Drug Store.

The eczema germ is a curious parasite. Scientists accustomed to the daily use of the microscope find difficulty in detecting it.

The germ lives only in the skin, and multiplies where the skin is weak and susceptible. It feeds on the oily substances, developing at the rate of thousands and tens of thousands daily. Nature combats them, but if the skin is weak the germs must be destroyed by an external remedy.

Oil of wintergreen properly mixed with other soothing ingredients is the best remedy yet found for all kinds of skin trouble. But oil of wintergreen alone will not suffice, and it is only when properly combined—as in D. D. D. Prescription—that we get a liquid that really cures while it INSTANTLY relieves the itch.

"I wish to thank the wonderful cure that the D. D. D. Prescription did for my baby boy that had eczema," says Mrs. A. L. Workman, of No. 3 Wights Add., Trinidad, Col. "We bought only one bottle after using the trial bottle and he has been cured for three months or more and no symptoms of it coming back."

D. D. D. Prescription is a mild soothing liquid made for a number of years by a Chicago company. It is no ordinary patent medicine and we thoroughly investigated the merits of the remedy before recommending it to people in our own town, F. W. Jordan, Bedford, Pa. Call at our store and we shall be glad to show you a bottle of the remedy, and to advise whether you buy the remedy, we will be glad to give you a pamphlet free of charge, this pamphlet telling about the diet, exercise, clothing and other treatment required for skin diseases.

CATARRH CAN BE CURED

Kill the Germs by Breathing Hy-o-mei—Gives Quick Relief.

Many people who have suffered with catarrh for years naturally think they cannot be cured, and become discouraged.

The reason they have failed of cure is because they have not treated the disease with the local remedy, Hy-o-mei, which is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler so that its healing medicated air reaches the most remote air-cells, kills all catarrh germs and restores the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs to a healthy condition.

Catarrh is really a local disease and to cure it, it must be treated by a remedy which reaches every spot in the nose and throat where the disease germs lodge. Hy-o-mei does this and gives relief from the first day's use.

A complete Hy-o-mei outfit costs but $1.00 and F. W. Jordan gives a guarantee with every package to refund the money unless it cures.

Would Make Them Eat

A London doctor says that one rule in the bringing up of children should be that they must eat wholesome food, and the parents should not excuse them from doing so. They must on no account be allowed to have a light at night. The bedtime hour should be inevitable.

There are many kidney remedies but few that accomplish the result. ## To Pot Plants

When transplanting or repotting plants remember that a plant loosely potted rarely thrives. Firm potting must be insisted upon—not hard pounding of the earth, but sufficient firmness about the roots to allow them to obtain a good hold in the soil.

PREVENT HEADACHE

Force them? No—alms them. Ramon's treatment of Liver Pills and Tonic Pellets strengthens the liver and digestive organs so that they do their own work and fortifies your constitution against future trouble. Entire treatment 25c.—J. R. Irvine & Co.

LETTER TO SHOEMAKER &amp; ENGLAND

Bedford, Pa.

Dear Sir: If you should bake bread that people like better than any other, and at less cost by the day, you'd have a pretty-good business, wouldn't you?

We have just such a business as that in paint, a gallon goes further than any other gallon of paint in the country—that's bread at less cost by the day; but the difference isn't so small as it is in bread. And a job wears longer—that's bread at less cost by the year. People hate to paint; it costs money to paint; and they hate the fuss. They like our bread by the year.

If your bread is better than anybody-else's, and costs less too, you've got a good trade; for people do like good bread; and people like money. It doesn't take long to find-out; give 'em time.

But you can't bake better-than-anybody-else's bread for half the usual price for a breakfast, can you?

Devoe is just such paint as that. The price by the gallon or loaf is no matter. Count by the day week month year lifetime. Devoe is the bread. We hope yours is as good.

Yours truly,
F. W. DEVOE & CO.
